From typographic research to contemporary lettering, this experience invites you to delve into one of the most sought-after and versatile creative languages in the Milanese art and fashion scene. Led by artist and lettering designer Mattia Bonora, who collaborates with major international brands and leads workshops in the fashion and visual communication world, this masterclass offers an authentic look at a discipline increasingly present at the intersection of art, design, and luxury branding.

During the class, you will analyze different writing styles and experiment with calligraphic tools and techniques, focusing on the aesthetic, rhythmic, and compositional aspects of the stroke. Through practical exercises and guided moments, you will discover how writing can transform into a contemporary visual language capable of building identity, atmosphere, and aesthetic impact.

A refined and immersive practice that opens doors to a niche creative universe, where manual gesture, artistic research, and contemporary visual culture meet in a highly current way.
