Within a space dedicated to traditional painting techniques, you will come into contact with one of the most fascinating practices in art history. Here you will be welcomed by Tamara, an experienced artist, who will guide you in creating a fresco following time-honored methods.

An experience that requires attention to gesture and time, where each phase is linked to the next.

You will start by preparing the support, spreading the plaster and observing how the surface transforms under your hands. You will then move on to transferring the design with the spolvero technique, finally painting with natural pigments on fresh plaster, working with precision and rhythm.

During the creation, time becomes an integral part of the process, and each gesture gains greater awareness.
And at a certain point, you are no longer just painting, but working within a technique that requires presence and control.

An authentic way to connect with Florence through a practice rooted in its artistic heritage.
